

I am an XM subscriber who is appalled at the proposal found in HR4026. I use satellite radio because virtually every station in our city is owned by Clear Channel and each station plays the same songs over and over again and the one station I do like loses reception halfway to work. I will use XM regardless of the results of this vote but I do not think government has the right to limit radio format, certainly so when motivated by corporate greed. The NAB wishes to hobble satellite's competitive edge by denying satellite subscribers an essential service. If broadcasters showed more imagination and free-thinking satellite radio would never have been necessary. This is the same problem as experienced in the television and cable industry. When will THEY learn?
